David has been instructed in hundreds of tax appeals (FTT, UT, Court of Appeal and Supreme Court) as well as many judicial reviews of HMRC decisions. He has also been involved in various associated proceedings including claims brought against directors (penalties and misfeasance/breach of duty) and disqualification proceedings

(CDDA).

David's experience includes many significant cases relating to VAT, Excise Duty and Customs Duty - ranging from customs classification appeals to approval revocation appeals to appeals against multi-million pound assessments. He has also dealt with countless cases in which fraud and/or abuse is alleged (MTIC/Kittel/Mecsec/Halifax/Fini/Ablessio). The cases he has been involved with have involved a variety of trade sectors including HMRC's most recent focus – the labour supply and payroll sector (including where HMRC allege that the flat rate VAT scheme has been abused).

David also acts for directors in penalty appeals and/or where breach of duty/misfeasance proceedings are brought often involving allegations of negligence, recklessness or fraud.

Additionally, David has knowledge and experience of criminal law, so is well suited to cases where there are parallel civil/criminal proceedings.

David is a former editor of the Customs Duties chapter in De Voil Indirect Tax Service and has contributed numerous articles to De Voil Indirect Intelligence. He has been described in Chambers and Partners as having "a compendious knowledge of indirect tax law" and being "very experienced and knowledgeable on indirect tax matters". Notable cases include:

CD v HMRC [2023] UKFTT: Acted for the taxpayer in this successful appeal against a denial of input tax and £15 million VAT assessment. The taxpayer was an employment intermediary that had purchased (and on-supplied) labour from thousands of mini-umbrella companies. HMRC subsequently denied the intermediary's input tax under the Kittel and Fini principles. The appeal was listed for a 10-day hearing before the Tax Tribunal. On day 1, HMRC opened their case by setting out their detailed basis for applying the Kittel and Fini principles. On day 2, David opened the Appellant's case. This included drawing on the extensive evidence filed on behalf of the Appellant and raising numerous other challenges to highlight the flaws in HMRC's case. On day 3, HMRC applied for an adjournment. That application, which was opposed by the Appellant, was refused by the Tribunal. HMRC then announced in open court that they were withdrawing their Kittel/Fini decision and VAT assessment in full. The Tribunal then ordered HMRC to pay the Appellant's costs.

Bachra v HMRC [2023] UKFTT 91 (TC): Acted for the taxpayer in this successful appeal against a £1.2million Personal Liability Notice issued to the director of a company under paragraph 19 of Schedule 24 FA 2007. HMRC had denied a company input tax on the Kittel basis and issued it with penalties under Schedule 24 of the Finance Act 2007. HMRC had then issued Personal Liability Notices (in the amount of £1.2 million) to the director of the company on the basis that inaccuracies in the company's vat returns were deliberate and attributable to the director. David acted for the director and successfully argued that the inaccuracies were not deliberate. The FTT allowed the appeal and quashed the Personal Liability Notices in full.

Pavan Trading v HMRC: Acted for the taxpayer in this successful appeal against HMRC's decision to refuse the right to zero-rate supplies made to customers in the United States on the basis that the Appellant did not hold sufficient evidence of export. HMRC issuing a corresponding assessment to output tax. David successfully argued that the Appellant did have sufficient evidence of export and that HMRC had made multiple errors in their approach to the case. The FTT allowed the appeal in full.

AB v HMRC [2022] UKFTT: Acted for the taxpayer in this successful appeal against a £1.5million Personal Liability Notice issued to the director of a company under paragraph 19 of Schedule 24 FA 2007. HMRC alleged that the company has suppressed large volumes of sales and thereby under-declared its VAT liability. HMRC further alleged that the suppression and under-declaration was deliberate and attributable to the director. Following submission of written arguments, HMRC conceded that the appeal should be allowed.

Lynton Exports (Alsager) Ltd v HMRC [2022] UKFTT 224 (TC): Acted for the taxpayer in this successful appeal against a denial of input VAT (on the Kittel basis) and a denial of the right to zero-rate (on the Mecsek basis) in relation to purchases and sales of soft drinks and confectionery. As a result of these decisions, HMRC assessed the taxpayer for £9.8 million of VAT. The Tribunal allowed the appeal in full and discharged the assessments.

International (Plywood) Importers Ltd v HMRC: Acted for the taxpayer in this appeal against C18 assessments issued because HMRC had formed the view that certain goods imported from Brazil should be classified as “plywood” rather than “shuttering” (to be used for concrete formwork).

YZ v HMRC: Acted for the taxpayer in this appeal relating to the correct customs duty classification of certain machine parts.

Ulster Metal Refiners v HMRC [2021] UKFTT 0286 (TC): Acted for the taxpayer in this appeal against a denial (on the Kittel basis) of input VAT incurred on purchases of soft drinks. The Tribunal allowed the appeal in relation to the vast majority of the denied input tax, finding that HMRC had not properly traced the transaction chains and had therefore not established a connection with fraud.

HMRC v Martyn Perfect: Acted for the taxpayer (in the Upper Tribunal, Court of Appeal and CJEU) in this case relating to the liability of “innocent agents” for unpaid excise duty.

R Ltd v HMRC [2021]: Acted for the taxpayer in this appeal against a penalty for alleged breach of the AWRS Regulations. The Tribunal allowed the appeal in full finding that there had been no such breach.
