

Employment

Podcast: Volunteering while on furlough

Posted on 02 June, 2020 by | Sebastian Purnell | Sam Way

Episode 3 of The Devereux COVID-19 Employment Law Podcast is now available. In this edition, Sebastian Purnell and Sam Way discuss the issues that arise when furloughed employees carry out voluntary work for their employer.

This podcast is available on all major platforms.

Sebastian Purnell practises in all areas of employment law, regularly in matters of complexity exceeding the presumed experience of someone of his Call and often against more senior opponents including Queen's Counsel.

Sam Way has a busy and varied practice in all areas of employment and discrimination law, representing both Claimants and Respondents in preliminary hearings, final hearings and on appeal. He is regularly instructed on multi-day Employment Tribunal hearings and has experience of advising on the enforcement of restrictive covenants.